HAWAIIAN WEEKLY CROP REPORT

For Week Ending February 11, 1935.

Honolulu, T. H., Feb. 13, 1935.

GENERAL SUMMARY.

The unusually cold spell, which began with the first week in January, has at last been broken, temperatures in all sections of the group having risen during the past week to about the normal for this season of the year. Light winds have prevailed, and during the latter part of the week the sunshine has been abundant. In Hawaii, the rainfall has been considerable in amount in all windward sections, the drought in the Puna and lower Hilo districts having been terminated by heavy showers. In Kauai, the situation has been slightly relieved by very light rains, while in Kona the drought continues unbroken. The rainfall has been fairly heavy over eastern Maui, but the central and western sections have been relatively dry, especially to leeward. Only light rains have fallen in Oahu. In Kauai, dry weather has prevailed in leeward sections, while to the windward the rainfall has been abundant except in the northern portion of the Puna district.

Under the favorable weather conditions of the week, vegetation in general shows a decided improvement. Young cane is growing nicely, and pineapple plants are in good condition. The young rice already set out in nursery beds continues. Cane grinding and sugar making are progressing rapidly. Pastures and stock are improving, except in leeward Hawaii and portions of leeward Maui.

REMARKS BY CORRESPONDENTS.

ISLAND OF HAWAII.

Kaunaloa—Much needed rain has fallen; crops of all kinds show decided improvement, due to milder weather, intermittent showers, and sunshine; water supply still too short for the fluming of cane; pastures improving; stripping cane.—J. E. Gamalolson.

Hilo—Showery weather; snow fell on Mauna Kea first of week.—L. C. Lyman.

Papaikou—Weather cloudy, with showers; the rain has helped us out considerably in our fluming and power, and has freshened up our cane fields; grinding, plowing and planting.—John T. Mole.

Pepeekeo—Nice showers and milder weather; flumes now well filled; young cane improving; cleaning up fields, plowing, and planting; cutting cane and making sugar.—Jas. Webster.

Honolulu—Weather much warmer this week; haye had good rains sufficient for growing cane, but water heads are still low; stripping, clearing and harvesting cane.—Wm. Pailor.

Laupahoehoe—Weather calm and warmer, with showery nights; seas smooth; coffee picking advancing on higher levels.—E. W. Barnard.

Ookala—The weather has improved during the week, being clear and warmer; snow on mountain summit has gradually disappeared; vegetation much benefited by change in weather conditions.—W. G. Walker.

Panahau—Weather clear, with considerably higher temperatures since 5th; light trade winds throughout the week.—H. Glass.

Upper Panahau—Weather warm and partially dry, with moderate northeast winds and a great deal of sunshine during latter part of week; cane is in good condition.—Dr. C. Buffett.

Honokaa—Early part of week cloudy and wet; higher temperature with abundant sunshine during last four days.—C. H. Bragg.

Niuli—After a good rain, we have had sunshine, and these two favorable conditions have brightened the color of cane leaves and have been very beneficial to all growing crops; stripping, cutting and grinding cane; plowing land.—Robert Hall.

Kohala Mission—Weather of the week has been warmer, and rain has been sufficient for present needs; no appreciable growth in crops or pastures.—Dr. B. D. Bond.

Puaka Ranch—Weather warmer, with light winds; rain during fore part of week; stock showing signs of improvement.—A. Mason.

Puuhoe—Weather changeable; light southerly winds; shifting later to northeast trades; pastures fair.—S. P. Woods.

Kamuela—Calm, bright weather, in decided contrast to the cold and stormy days of last week; stock will suffer unless we have southerly rains soon.—Mrs. E. W. Hay.

Kealahou—Warmer weather with plenty of sunshine during latter part of week; light shower on 6th.—Rev. S. H. Davis.

Kealahou—The drought continues; pastures is now very short and of poor quality, in consequence of which stock is rapidly losing condition; weather very clear and days warm.—Robert Wallace.

Kau—Weather warmer with light showers of rain and good indications of more to follow.—F. H. Hayselden.

Pahala—Warmer weather during the past week; some rain, but not enough to do much good to cane and grass.—H. D. Harrison.

Kapoho—Warmer weather, with good rains during the early part of week; vegetation shows decided improvement due to rain and warmth without high winds.—H. J. Lyman.

Oloa—Heavy showers during week, affording sufficient moisture for growing cane but no water for flumes; started to grind cane on the 10th.—E. P. McCann.

ISLAND OF MAUI.

Kipahulu—Light variable winds and higher temperatures; rainfall insufficient for growing cane, although water supply is sufficient for fluming.—A. Gross.

Huelo—Vegetation improving under more favorable conditions of temperature and sunshine; stock appears better than last week; heavy freshets during fore part of week.—W. F. Pogue.

Haiku—Crops responding to warmer

A MONUMENT FOR PAUL JONES

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ASKS CONGRESS TO MAKE A SUITABLE APPROPRIATION FOR PURPOSE.

Associated Press, Morning Service.

WASHINGTON, February 14.—President Roosevelt has requested Congress to appropriate $35,000 to search for the body of John Paul Jones in an abandoned cemetery of Paris and erect a suitable monument.

The result of the search instigated in 1899 by Henry Vignaud, secretary of the United States embassy at Paris as well as an enthusiastic archaeologist, was the location of the grave of Commodore John Paul Jones as being somewhere beneath the house at No. 1 Rue des Ecluses Saint-Martin which was built on the corner of a cemetery abandoned in 1793. The burial of Jones took place in the year previous, July 20, 1792. Owing to the intense feeling against Protestants in the early part of the last century records of Protestant burials are hard to find but documents have been dug up which approximately locate the burial place of the American naval hero.

There are no records stating whether Jones was buried in uniform or not or describing his coffin so it is somewhat doubtful whether the exact spot can be found or the remains discovered. Excavations have shown that the whole tract once covered by the cemetery consists of what is technically known as "corpses land" and is full of bones, the cemetery having been overcrowded. As the body of the commodore was one of the last to be buried it is very likely that it was interred near what was the entrance to the graveyard. If he was buried in his uniform there might be a few brass buttons or the sword by which the body might be identified.

The place was used as a stable after the graveyard was discontinued and then as a laundry. In digging a pit for the boiler of the laundry many bones were exhumed. At present the place is occupied by a photographer, Gouverneur Morris visited Jones when he was on his deathbed and drew up his will for him, "when his extremities had already become cold." By an odd coincidence the street leading into the Rue des Ecluses Saint-Martin opposite the house under which the remains of Jones lie is named Rue Vicq d'Azir after the physician of Queen Marie Antoinette, the same physician who visited Jones with Gouverneur Morris.

The French government asserts that it defrayed the expenses of the commodore's funeral. Morris in his diary says that the funeral was an extremely simple one as the minister did not feel authorized to spend the money of the estate which was waited with impatience by Jones' relatives or the money of the United States. From this it would seem that the French government did not pay for the funeral and it seems unlikely that the body was buried in a uniform.
